Bank First breaks ground in the City of Plymouth

JUNE 1, 2017 - Bank First representatives recently held a groundbreaking ceremony for their new banking facility located off Eastern Avenue in Plymouth. Joining them were Jeremiah Lederer from Edgewater Plumbing, Mike Koenig from Mike Koenig Construction, architect Rich Hepner from Kubala Washatko Architects, Plymouth Mayor Don Pohlman, Kathy Blanke and Stuart Blanke from Land Steward Enhancements/Willow Wood Acres.

Mike Koenig Construction is the general contractor of the project, which is expected to be completed by early 2018. The new building will utilize space for a more efficient layout to better service our customers. The Kubala Washatko Architects will be assisting in the design and planning process, and Miller Engineers & Scientists will be aiding in the geotechnical and site plan engineering.

Currently located at 2323 Eastern Avenue, Bank First established itself in the Plymouth community when it acquired the former Dairy State Bank in 1999. “The support from the Plymouth community over the years has allowed Bank First to grow and develop meaningful relationships with local families and businesses. The construction of a new branch is our way of reinvesting into what Dairy State Bank started and continuing its legacy of providing high-quality community banking,” stated Todd K. Neils, Plymouth Market President.
